

CRC cards for browser-server-python interpreter interactions make an http request to the server for an html page server.

Browser

Server

handle the http requests and generate an html page in response browser python interpreter

python interpreter

execute the `create_app()` function to create a Flask application Server instance